Bio & Education

I'm a very proud graduate of the University of Illinois. After working in the banking world, I decided to get a Masters Degree in Mathematics Teaching from National-Louis University. During my 12 year teaching career, I have taught almost every level of middle school and high school mathematics from 6th Grade up to PreCalculus. I pride myself in being able to bring real-world mathematics connections into the classroom, as well as a broad scope of knowledge and passion that will result in student engagement and success.
